Message from the Chief:

It is an honor and a privilege to lead the men and women of the Foxborough police department and to continue the tradition of collaborative policing in Foxborough, the gem of Norfolk County. I began my new role as your Chief of Police on October 3rd, 2016. I come to you as a local, state, federal and international law enforcement leader with experience in three states and more than 36 countries around the world. I am now proud to call Foxborough my home.

These are challenging times in law enforcement around the country which reinforces my solemn obligation to support the men and women with whom I serve and to build trust and confidence among the residents, business owners and visitors we are sworn to protect.

Foxborough is unique in many ways. We have the good fortune of living and working in a community rich in natural resources and environmental amenities like our vast conservation and recreation lands. I have also observed a real sense of community here which is something to be cherished and proud of.

However, we also face big city challenges which we must manage with a sophisticated, yet small town, flair. Bisected by some of Massachusetts busiest highways and home to New England's largest sport and entertainment venue the men and women of the Foxborough police department meet those challenges day in and day out.

Communication, transparency and a commitment to mutual understanding and respect are some of the key ingredients to a healthy relationship between every community and their police department. We pledge our commitment to those ideals and we trust that you will do the same. We are grateful for your support and proud to be your neighbors and friends.
